Dropping of 2,000,000 civilians from the Federal payroll within a year after the war ends was foreseen today by Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee. At the same time, the Civil Service Commission announced regulations to govern separations as reductions become necessary.

Recalling that executive agency employment now totals 2,908,912, Mr. Ramspeck estimated that postwar cuts will bring the total down to about 900,000. The 270,057 Federal employes in Washington, he believes, will be reduced to half that num-When the rearmament program

D'Alesandro Group Submitted Proposals By Dr. Ethridge

An eight-point program designed to strengthen the District's control of tuberculosis, dealing with both Health Department organization and public facilities, was filed with the D'Alesandro Subcommittee of the House District Committee today by Dr. Clayton B. Ethridge.

Dr. Ethridge is chairman of a tuberculosis subcommittee of the District Medical Society, but stressed that his recommendations were made as an individual on the basis of several years of study. He suggests, among other items, additional facilities for chest X-ray tests for various population groups, including in and out patients at Gallinger Municipal Hospital, where he predicted the yield of positive cases would be high.

Others to be given chest X-rays should include all District government employes, including school teachers and other school personnel, District hospital workers and patients at Health Department health

Co-ordinator Is Proposed. Dr. Ethridge also recommended as 'an especial need" the immediate creation of a controller of tuberculosis in the Health Department to co-ordinate the activities of the four separate units now engaging in tuberculosis work. He listed these as the Glenn Dale (Md.) Sanitorium, the tuberculosis unit at Gallinger, the Upshur Street Hospital and the Health Department Bureau of Tuberculosis. He protested that each of these units now operates "more or less autonomously with motions filed by James J. By CARTER BROOKE JONES.

President Roosevelt "seems like one possessed of devils," an associate of one defendant in the sedition case wrote another of the 26 alleged conspirators, according to a Government exhibit which Chief Prosecutor O. John Rogge read today to the District Court jury. It was one of the letters exchanged between "Larry and George," whom the prosecutor described as Law-rence Brown, editor for the former Silver Shirt leader, William Dudley Pelley, and George E. Deartherage, ex-commander of the Knights of the White Camellia. Pelley and Deatherage are defendants. In this letter dated October 28, 1941, "Larry" spoke of "F. D. R.'s crazy address of last evening," adding:

"I never heard him talk like that but once before, and this was even more belligerent, to the point of exhibiting a man well unbalanced, as charged by Berlin spokesman • • • His pictures show a man beside himself. Maybe you have heard something not published about what got into this man, for he seems like one possessed of devils."

"May See Our Dunkerque." The writer added: "Yes, we may ee our Dunkerque. As Mr. Rogge delved deeper today into approximately 200 documents Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher admitted in evidence late yesterday, defense counsel continued to bombard the court with objections and motions to strike certain exhibits from the record. All the motions were denied.

In the course of the arguments

Objection Is Denied.

Several defense attorneys leaped up with demands that Mr. Rogge's comment be eliminated from the record, but Justice Eicher refused, saying that in the continual utterance of objections previously overruled there was at least doubt of the good faith of counsel. The attorneys took emphatic exception to the court's remarks.
